

HANOVER TOWNSHIP FARMER DIES IN CRASH

CITY OF SALEM IS GIVEN $4,498 IN R. F. C. GRANT

Fund Comes from Highway Department; Will Not Be Paid Back

MAHONING COUNTY DISTRICTS AIDED

Alliance Gets $29,700; E.
Liverpool, E. Palestine, Wellsville Benefit

An apportionment of $4,498, to be used for unemployment relief here, today was granted the City of Salem by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The fund is obtained by the RFC from the federal highway department in Washington, D. C., and is part of an appropriation annually set aside for federal highway work in Columbiana county.

Won't Have to Be Returned

The money comes to this city as a federal grant and will not have to be returned by the municipality, according to City Auditor Karl L.
Webster.

In turn, however, no federal highway construction or improvement work will be undertaken in the county or city during the year, officials explain.

Columbiana county was granted a total apportionment of $41,420 through the federal grant. Of this amount $17,447 goes to East Liverpool, $7,304 to Wellsville and $1,245 to East Palestine in addition to that received by Salem.

Arrangements were made to obtain unemployment relief funds from the federal highway unit to avoid issuance of bonds and the creation of additional indebtedness against Ohio subdivisions. The apportionments made today will be used in Salem and other county cities for welfare work in March.

Additional Funds are Anticipated by townships and cities for future months.

Mahoning Gets Help

Mahoning county receives from the federal department, through the RFC an apportionment of $219-09. The City of Youngstown receives $166,922. Struthers gets $5-86 and Campbell, $12,984.

Other district apportionments are:

Stark county, $141,000 of which $29,700 goes to Alliance, $68,125 to Canton, $19,675 to Massillon.

Trumbull county, $112,183 of which $12,063 goes to Garard, $23,573 to Niles and $22,200 to Warren.

Assails Jews

While uttering a vigorous denial of the charges that persons of Jewish faith were brutally treated in Germany, Dr. Ernst Hanfstaengl, chief of the foreign press section of Chancelor Hitler's Nazi organization, is quoted as saying that the outing of Jews from influential position will continue "until the house is cleansed." He said Jews already ousted were "morally and politically unfit to safeguard German interests."

FORMER TRUST HEAD INDICTED

C. Stirling Smith, Auditor of Standard Trust
Co., Named by Jury

(By Associated Press)
CLEVELAND, O., March 29.—An indictment charging embezzlement was returned by the county grand jury today against C. Stirling Smith, president of the Standard Trust company which closed 15 months ago. A similar charge was made against D. T. Winslow, auditor of the bank.

A second indictment, also charging embezzlement, was returned against a third person, but it was a secret true bill.

Smith and Winslow were jointly accused of embezzling and converting to their own use $19,253 on Feb.
7, 1930. Smith was named as a director of the bank while Winslow was accused as an agent of the Citizens Security corporation of Cleveland. The money, the true bill asserted, was the property of the Citizens Bank and Trust company.

The grand jury's action came after its sudden renewal yesterday of the $13,200,000 failure of the Standard Trust in December, 1931.

Salem Rotarians Hear Pastor; Plan Trip to Alliance

Rev. Harold P. Humbert, pastor of the Church of Christ at Hiram, spoke on the subject, "The Dynamics of Rotary," at the Salem Rotary club meeting Tuesday noon at Quaker tea house.

He referred to Rotary's influence in broadening the individual member, its development of a better understanding between men, its program of service and goodwill.

Rev. Humbert, past president of the Garretttsville club, is a candidate for governor of the 21st Rotary district. He was presented to the Salem club by G. E. Downing.

Alden Gross was welcomed as a new member of the club at this meeting.

Charles W. Pettis, secretary of the Alliance club, extended an invitation to Salem Rotarians to attend an inter-city gathering next Wednesday night at the Alliance Country club. In sponsoring this event, the Alliance club has invited about 10 clubs. The speaker will be Dr.
Edgar Williams of Brussels, Belgium.

The Salem club voted to abandon its meeting next Tuesday and to attend the Alliance gathering.

Asks Mortgage Plan

WASHINGTON, March 29.—Rep.
Frank C. Kniffen (D.) of Napoleon, O., said he intends to introduce legislation at the next regular session of Congress to standardize farm and other real estate mortgages if the administration refinancing program fails to measure up to his ideas.

He said he believes a standardized mortgage would help release elaborate but frozen farm and real estate paper.

Styles for 1933

Vying with the first robin for attention, spring versions of personal adornment are cropping up in colorful array, bidding us cast off winter's armor and bedeck ourselves for a balmy season.

Not to be outdone, things for the home have succeeded in becoming equally important, and judging by what we've seen, if "home is where the heart is," the heart is going to be very very contented and comfortable.

The Salem News tomorrow will carry a special section of new spring modes, announcing the offerings of Salem's merchants in virtually every line. In these pages you will find interesting and pertinent style information for yourself your children and your home, authentic guidance in your selection of apparel and furnishings for spring.

And as you go through the shops of Salem you will find an array of merchandise that will reveal that spring, 1933, is the best of times to make selections—not only from the standpoint of style-rightness but also of economy.

ASKS CONGRESS TO PUT WATCH ON SECURITIES

Roosevelt Sends Sixth
Special Message To Legislators

HEARING SLATED TO OPEN TOMORROW

Seeks Regulation of Agencies Handling Other People's Money

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, March 29.—President Roosevelt asked congress today to provide federal supervision of investment securities.

In another direct special message —his sixth in less than three weeks —the chief executive declared the public has sustained "severe losses through practices neither ethical nor honest."

Thereupon, he proposed to invoke the power of the federal government to control new securities traffic to control new securities.

Preparations already were under way in house and senate to expedite the newest administration legislation.

Start Hearings Tomorrow

Representative Rayburn (D., Tex.) said hearings would be held by the interstate commerce committee, which he heads, possibly starting tomorrow. He endorsed the proposal, and introduced the bill when the message had been read.

The President also informed congress he would propose soon legislation "relating to the better supervision of the purchase and sale of all properties dealt in on exchanges."

He also spoke of legislation he has in mind "to correct unethical and unsafe practices on the part of officers and directors of banks and other corporations."

"What we seek," Mr. Roosevelt said, "is a return to a clear understanding of the ancient truth that those who manage banks, corporations and other agencies handling or using other people's money are trustees acting for others."

Court Orders Sale Of Guilford Church

LISBON, March 29.—As a result of an order handed down in common pleas court, the former Methodist Episcopal church at Guilford is to be sold by the East Ohio M. E. conference. A petition asking such an order was recently filed by Atty.
Robert E. Hall, Lisbon, in behalf of the East Ohio conference.

The M. E. congregation at Guilford has disbanded; no trustees were looking after the property, which has been idle for about 20 years.

Razing of the building will commence within 10 days, it is said, an offer of $50 having been made for it. Lumber will be used to build an addition to a house at Guilford. The little community in Hanover township where Guilford state park is located is now without a church of any denomination.

"Worst Is Over"

CINCINNATI, March 29.—Passage of the national economy bill marked "the turning point" and "the worst is over," in the opinion of Colonel Charles F. Williams, president of the Western and Southern Life Insurance company.

He said in an address that the bill "calls a halt to the orgy of extravagance in national expenditures" and now "capital will come out of hiding."

Charles A. Lindbergh, wife of the noted flyer, U. S. officials descended upon Hudson, O., and arrested Proveno Nardella, left, 15-year-old school boy, as the author of the letter. The note demanded that the money be sent to "Dad, care of Bluebird Inn, Hudson, O."
"Dad" is C. E. Buris, right, a reclusive friend of the boy, but who, according to authorities, is not implicated. Mrs. Lindbergh did not know of the extortion plot.

ARMY TO SEEK RELIEF FUNDS

Plans for an emergency donation campaign in which funds are being sought to assist the corps in its work among the city's needy families were announced today by T.
Emerson Smith, chairman of the Salem Salvation Army board of directors.

Committees are being appointed to take charge of the drive with campaign headquarters located at the Elks lodge home, East State st.
The campaign is being launched, Smith announced, because of the increased need of finances in the Salvation Army treasury.

The treasury now has a deficit, Smith stated, because of extensive welfare work conducted during the last year.
Milk, ice, coal, wood, clothing, medicine and all types of assistance, through food, fuel or contributions of clothing, have been distributed among indigent families, while, Smith explained, efforts have also been directed to give spiritual aid to the unfortunate.

MRS. ILA CRONIN SUPPORTS BEER AND TELLS WHY

No Selfish Motive, for—
"I Never Drank a Glass
In My Life"

SEES MEANS FOR REVENUE RELIEF

Confident that Emergency Measure Will Serve As Spur to Industry

Mrs. Ila Marshall Cronin, Colum-biana county's representative in the state legislature, will vote for the Ohio beer law and its emergency clause, she announced today.

Explaining her position with respect to this emergency revenue measure, she said:

"I shall vote for the emergency clause and for the bill. I do this with no selfish motive for I never drank a glass of beer in my life—although had beer and good factory beer have been available to everyone, during the last few years, who had the price to pay for it.

"We voted, and I supported the measure, to submit the matter of the repeal of the 18th amendment to the vote of the people.

"I voted against the Mosler bill, when the amendment to strike out the list of unpledged delegates was lost, for I wanted to see a straight wet and dry vote in the state, which would be a true expression from the people.

Nothing to Conflict

"I see nothing in this present measure which conflicts with, or alters in any way our individual positions on previous legislation, for this bill has nothing whatever to do with legislation involving drinks of higher alcoholic content, and is before us strictly as an emergency revenue measure.

"In the last two eventful weeks we have had a great object lesson in what confidence on the part of the people will do.

"I am a Republican, but Republicans and Democrats alike pay tribute to the President for his masterful handling of the present financial and economic crisis.

"Who among us, two weeks ago, when banks were closing one after another, when checks were being returned unpaid, when frantic depositors were anxiously coming to get what money they had in the bank out, would have believed that today those same anxious individuals would be quietly returning their savings to the banks again, that business would have picked up, and that confidence would have been restored.

"The financial crisis has been met and, we believe, averted. Now the President has outlined a plan to help meet the economic crisis.
To have a part in its solution will require fine courage on the part of the legislators. We all realize that the tide of industry is at low ebb. The reserves for taxes, and even the reserves for charity are almost exhausted.

Cincinnati Officials Frantic When They Find City Laws Are Worthless

Tax Payer Wins In Supreme Court On Protest Against Publication Methods

(By Associated Press)
CINCINNATI, March 29.—Cincinnati today was a city, its officials feared, without any laws except those in its charter.

A supreme court ruling invalidating an assessment ordinance was accepted by many to mean that every ordinance enacted since 1927 is worthless. It was in that year the city acquired a new charter and junked its old laws.

Will Re-enact Statutes

So, despite the assertion of Chief Justice Carl V. Weygant that the supreme court had ruled on "only one Cincinnati ordinance," the city council prepared to re-enact every statute placed on the city's law books since 1927. Weygant said separate rulings would be necessary to determine whether other ordinances were invalid, and expressed the opinion their re-enactment was unnecessary.

The predicament was brought about by a taxpayer, who, objecting to property assessments totaling

FATE OF BEER UP TO HOUSE

Legislative Measure to Be Acted On Late Today;
Needs 90 Votes

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, March 29.—Whether legal beer flows in Ohio April 7, the effective date of national prohibition modification, rested with Ohio house of representatives today.

The bill to legalize beer of 3.2 per cent alcoholic content by weight and to regulate its manufacture and distribution, will be brought to a vote with the unanimous recommendation of the house judiciary committee for passage.

Filing of the committee report is expected late today and leaders plan to place the bill on its immediate passage under a suspension of the rules.

House leaders have expressed a belief the measure can get the required 90 votes to make it an emergency act, and therefore immediately effective. It passed the senate as an emergency Monday night.
Failure to obtain 90 votes in the house would mean that Ohioans must wait 90 days before the act would go into effect.

Near Vote on Pensions

COLUMBUS, O., March 29.—While the house was preparing to vote on the Ackerman bill to legalize the sale of 3.2 per cent beer, the senate today was working toward a vote on the old age pension bill and the Lloyd "gate rate" utility bill, both houses were looking forward to a recess tomorrow, until May 15.

Anticipating a vote on the beer bill, the house calendar committee brought forward only a few bills of minor importance for its work today. The senate,

SOMETHING FOR RAILROADS

The country is resigned to the fact that it must do something for railroads. Like the farmers, like the banks, like the debtors and almost everything else whose condition affects the welfare of large numbers of people, they are considered worthy of help.The unfavorable things in their condition are obvious. Capitalized, to do business on a boom scale, they have been struggling to stretch constantly diminishing revenues to cover a financial structure all out of proportion to the times. They are being squeezed between their own mistakes and conditions over which they had no control.They do not ask or need help for themselves alone, but for the great body of investors who hold their securities. When the government prepares to assist them, it prepares to assist institutions holding their bonds and stocks. It prepares to help hundreds of thousands of people whose welfare depends heavily on the stability of those institutions. It prepares, in short, to help the individual citizens of this socialistic government which isn't quite ready yet to admit that it retains ultimate control over economic activities.Government ownership of this great public utility, it follows naturally, is a more imminent possibility now than it ever has been before. Railroads have named their days of sweeping expansion under the control of rugged individualists.
Government, instead of being a tool to cultivate their profits, has become a tool to protect themselves from adversity. They are in no position to withstand circumstances which threaten to make a master of the tool and servants of the masters.No one knows exactly what will happen or what is the intention of the political leaders whose present actions will determine vital policies concerning railroads and the government. It seems, however, that another chance for private management is to be granted—a chance given under such close supervision that the supervisor and not private management will be responsible for the outcome. By some plan yet to be revealed it will be done. A country grown accustomed to helping everything and everybody in the name of social cooperation will not deny assistance to the railroads.
The policy is accepted without question.

LESS THAN HALF SPEED

Figures rarely can be trusted, except as a means of telling what happened after it is over. The following estimates, prepared by the National Industrial Conference board will be more dependable in a few more years when people are remembering, rather than experiencing, the depression.For whatever they may be worth evidence and indication, they are herewith presented:The buying power of the United States today is 46.3 per cent of what it was in 1929. The country is going along at less than half speed. The volume of employment has decreased 43.4 per cent during the same period. Industrial wage rates have been reduced 19.3 per cent; working hours of employed workers have been shortened an average of 28.9 per cent. In terms of the figure which best represents why there is a depression and why there is imperative need for some release of pressure which will make it possible for wages to go up, the industrial population of the United States, both employed and unemployed, is receiving only 33.4 per cent as many dollars in wage income as in 1929.Something like this is the real explanation of that condition of things which has paralyzed business. The buying power of the dollar has increased, but the volume ofdollar-income has decreased to such an extent that the balance, in terms of national buying power, is almost 4 per cent under half of what it was in 1929.

OLD AGE PENSION

Editor, The News:

Old age pension legislation is sweeping the country. Approximately 30 states have adopted old age pension laws, and a number of them have had them in operation for a generation. No state that ever adopted an old age pension law has ever repealed it.Ohio now has an old age pension law pending in the assembly at Columbus. It was initiated by 100,000 petitioners from all over the state.Ohio wants old age pension legislation, which has proven so successful in other states in alleviating the problem of the worthy aged needy people, and so economical a solution.The lower house of the assembly passed the proposed law. We hope that the senate will do the same.

THE BRUTALITY OF SHAW

When George Bernard Shaw, bad boy of English letters and self-appointed dramatic Napoleon, lands in San Francisco this week to visit the United States for the first time in his long, snoring career, Americans must steel themselves for his ironic darts and rapier-like thrusts.Nothing will delight G. B. S. more than to tell us to our faces that we are a nation of liars. Safely scooping up the American royalties on his writings from the safe isolation of his English residence, Shaw has been in the habit of biting the hand that feeds him. Americans have supinely pretended to like it. Always the poseur, Santa Claus Shaw enjoys striking an attitude and maintaining it against all comers.It may be, however, that he will discover on his first trip to a nation he has professed to despise that he has gone a bit too far. The Shavian pose struck a snag recently, touched a quickened American nerve when the bad boy met Helen Keller. America's famed blind and deaf woman whose writings have been an inspiration to millions.Describing a recent meeting with Shaw in the London home of Lady Astor, Miss Keller says she waited in a flutter of hero worship for the great author to awake from a nap.
When he came, she relates, she groped out her hand and felt a hand, "bristling with egotism," take it slackly. To him she said: "I've waited to know you for ever so long.""Why do all you Americans say the same thing?" he replied.Miss Keller's companion tapped Shaw's words into her hand.Lady Astor, intervened, told Shaw: "Shaw, don't you realize this is Helen Keller? She is deaf and blind.""Why, of course," was Shaw's rejoinder. "All Americans are deaf and blind—and dumb."There is a point beyond wit, a point beyond patience, a point where a pose becomes a form of inhuman brutality.—Toledo Times.

Care of Diabetic Child

Recently I read an encouraging report, covering the advances made in the treatment of children who have diabetes. The discovery of insulin has changed the outlook in this disease. It is an outstanding medical achievement and one that has saved the lives of thousands of men, women and children.It is a misfortune to have diabetes in early life.
But children so afflicted are no longer doomed, as they used to be.
When the disease is recognized early and insulin is given, the sufferer can continue a normal life. Sometimes diet alone is sufficient to control the ailment.Let me warn you against placing too much faith in the idea that diabetes is curable. Though tremendous strides have been made in the treatment of this disease, complete cure has not been discovered.
Frankness compels me to say that insulin does not cure diabetes; it controls the disease and permits the sufferer to carry on a useful normal life.

Care of the Child

Children suffering from diabetes are now assured of normal growth and development. But, as I have said, this is possible only when the disease is recognized, the insulin prescribed and the diet properly regulated.Under no circumstances should insulin be given other than under the physician's supervision. He and only he is in a position to determine whether insulin is necessary, and if it is necessary, what dosage is best.The diabetic child should be taught to eat his food slowly and carefully. Explain the disease so that he may understand what food and how much food to take. The child should rest before and after meals. He should not be treated as an invalid, but warning should be given of the dangers associated with faulty diet and carelessness in matters relating to the general health.

How Insulin Is Given

Insulin should be given at the same time every day. Bear in mind that meals must be eaten at definite hours. Irregularity is dangerous when insulin is being given.
May I assure all worried mothersthat if a child sleeps well, eats well and is gaining in weight, there is no need for alarm. Merely because one of the parents or grandparents suffers from diabetes is no reason for fearing the outlook.Diabetes should be suspected if the child drinks an unusual amount of water. Overactivity of the kidneys is another sign. A child suffering from this disease may have an excellent appetite, but lose weight in spite of it.When the disease is suspected, the discharges should be tested for sugar. A chemical analysis of the blood should be made to determine the actual amount of the sugar present. The information gained in this way will determine whether insulin should be prescribed.We are indebted to the brilliant work of those scientists who have awakened the hope of a cure in this disease. It has changed our outlook on diabetes in children. Let us hope for scientific success in other fields.

The Stars Say—

For Thursday, March 30

A fairly lively and progressive day is forecast from the prevailing lunar and mutual aspects of the planets.
While there may be keen interest in business, especially in all relating to publishing and writings, and there is sign of some minor change or journey, yet all may be frustrated by a tendency to rash and impetuous or turbulent acts and words. And yet difficult situations may be smoothed over by the "soft answer that turneth away wrath" or by tactful writings.Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of fair success and activity in business, with some minor change, travel or removal, but there is a forecast of peril to the best interests through reckless and tumultuous words and acts unless self-restraint and calm demeanor be preserved. A child born on this day may be fairly talented, possibly in original lines, but an impulsive and wayward disposition may neutralize its success and happiness in life.RAYMOND, Wash.—Mrs. M. A.

NEW YORK, March 29.—Broadway, reaching its shabbiest low, has for several years expressed a street carnival rhythm, but even that valiant old defender, Variety, now calls it "honky-tonk." Coupled with this is the empty-store blindness that suggests a wintry boardwalk at Coney Island.From the Circle to Herald Square are at least a dozen penny and nickel-a-dance halls blowy, dim-lit joints with faded, gum-chewing hostesses. Even the outside barkers present a dispirited droop in ill-fitting uniforms. The movies with circled-up fronts stress the tawdriness.Some of these movies, exploiting 25-cent films, have usher-salesmen telling sex tracts at intermissions.
At least 50 cellar clip joints have singers of filthy songs, and several offer the exhibitionists of rue Blondell. And, after midnight pornographic postcards are hawked in the Parisian manner.Panderers, who used to be chased up side streets, also are a part of the scum of the after-midnight boil. Several hotels, once trying to be respectable, have long given up the struggle. No questions are asked.We wonder what the Broadway blooms of 30 years ago—Caleb Blake, Cyril Chromius and the rest —would think of the nightly spectacle today. In those days, there was a box at the Folies, a supper at Delmonico's and a dawn wind-up at Bustanoby's. Broadway was symbolical of the metropolitan consciousness—an overworked city at play. Then came the racketeers!The most talked-of chorus girl of that epoch was Jessie Reed, a Titan-haired beauty with peach-blown complexion, out of a Texas whistle stop. She played no favorites, and was acquired by a different gallant nightly. She reigned five years, was then involved in several marital mix-ups, and suddenly disappeared.Perhaps no one else can describe "the Broadway that is no more" as well as "Ma" Schlesinger. She has lived, reared a family, and been in 20 different businesses in one little store in Times Square. Before moving uptown, she lived on lower Broadway and has not been off the street one day or night in 20 years.
She has seen opulent men reduced to carrying the banner and women, whose names were once spoken in awe, become "decoys," patiently knitting in the sight-seeing buses.One of the pathetic touches of Broadway is the electrical clock now advertising a malt, and which its owners hope soon to use in advertising real beer. In the sad interlude, it mournfully chimes at the quarter hours, "How Dry I Am!"A melancholy pull pup, with all the world's troubles in his eyes, sat aloof in a window of mixed puppets, on 49th street. A little girl, finely dressed, with her aristocratic mother, passed. "I want him. He looks so sad," she said. A few minutes later a chauffeur, in plum liverage, came, and carried it around the corner to the child waiting in the limousine. Thus he left Bagdad to become a prince among pups. Kis-

"THE LOVE TRAP"

CHAPTER FORTY-SEVEN

Friday, at the lunch hour, Mary drew a hundred dollars from her savings account. All afternoon she was in a state of rapturous excitement. Before dinner she went, as she had promised, to the Metropolitan Hotel and left the money with the clerk for Landers. Her nervousness persisted—although she knew she would win, because Landers had said so. He had promised to telephone her before midnight and when the call came, she was waiting downstairs in the hall, at the phone. His voice was at once buoyant and reassuring.

"Wait right there and I'll be up in a taxi within fifteen minutes with your money. You sure won yourself a couple of bets, girl!"

Excitement swept through her, brilliant and exhilarating. In two months she would be on her way to Cuba to see Steve. She was sure her employer would give her the time off—if he didn't, it wouldn't matter. There were a million jobs in New York, but there was only one Steve in Cuba.

Presently Landers came and his keen eyes met her with a smile, as if the sight of her affected him like a strong tonic. A neat little fold of $100 dollar bills was put into her hands. It was a miracle of money—but yet, the money itself was nothing. Buck Landers had plucked it out of the thin air. His good will was giving her to Cuba and to Steve.

"It's useless for me to try to thank you," she said, with a catch in her voice.

He waved a negligent hand. "I happened to have the chance to put you in on a good thing and I was glad to do it. You needn't thank me, either. You had a break coming from me, anyway."

"And once I thought you were my enemy," she breathed.

"And so I was," he stated. "I think I proved a disagreeable enemy for a while, and now, I hope, you see that I am your friend. Mary, I guess I am lucky just to be able to see you now and then. A little bit of you is better than nothing at all."

Mary thought there was a wisdom in his voice; her own cup of happiness was so overflowing that she could spare for Buck Landers a swift measure of pity at the emptiness of his love. Love was denied him, and his absence brought a pain equivalent to her own joy. There was much badness in him, she thought, but there was a strain of goodness, too. And now, in the light of the great service he had done her, she could see only the good. The villainies of his past were wiped out, and he appeared to her pitifully empty-hearted and alone. The last of all mistrust against him had been erased from her heart.

"You mustn't be blue," she said spontaneously.

"I'll try not to," he said with a grin, and she imagined, romantically, that he tried to hide his sorrow. "I'm feeling pretty good right now—I'm proud that I've hung on to your friendship through thick and thin. I did things to make you hate me—but here we are together, like a couple of pals. The only thing is—I get so damnably lonesome lots of times. Tonight, I looked forward to seeing you like it was a sort of celebration."

But her own spirit, joyous in its upward flight of happiness, could not bear the touch of sadness in this man who had provided her gay, spangled trip of golden adventure to Cuba and Steve. His face, she thought, looked tired and worn; there was a new drop to his shoulders. Her fancy became imaginative and she glimpsed him as a kindly, gallant figure. What he needed was—love.

"You're intelligent about everything," she said to him gently. "You shouldn't live such a disorganized life in a hotel—you ought to have a home. Why don't you get married to some nice girl?"

His eyes drifted away from hers. "I tried to marry a nice girl once—and you were the girl. You know the answer."

"But I'm only one girl—you could have a million to pick from!"

"Not girls of your type, Mary. I couldn't stand one of those jazz babies that anybody could get, and no girl on your level would want to marry me."

A pang of feeling stabbed her. He seemed an outcast—yet what a wonderful husband he would make for the right girl! There was something deep and mellow about him that most young men did not have—he had generosity, and immense powers of devotion.

"When I get to Steve, I'm going to tell him all about what you've done for me," she said. "I think you have been perfectly wonderful—and he will too, when I tell him. I know of no other man alive who would have admitted his mistakes, and tried to make up for them, Mr. Landers."

But the role of depression was alien to his nature and he threw it off.

"And while you are waiting for that trip to Cuba—I'll still be around. Why can't we see something of each other occasionally? There'll be no harm in it."

She hesitated a moment, prompted by some vague instinct, but she had not the heart to accept his favors and then turn them back.

"Why, yes, I'll be glad to see you sometimes. You can call me up here. I'm usually in, or at the book store."

"I'll do that little thing," he told her, a note of satisfaction in his voice. "And if anything goes wrong meanwhile, just remember I'm standing behind you. If you ever need a strong hand to protect you from the world—that's me."

That night Mary stretched her lovely young form out on her cot bed, and gave herself up to joyous anticipations of the trip to Cuba. Her fancy pictured herself aboard the steamship, her arrival in Cuba—Steve's delight at seeing her—

Oh, it was glorious to have love and pleasure mingled in such an immediate future! Eileen Calvert would be utterly discomfited—all of her schemes nullified.

Buck Landers, poor man, would be blighted at her going, but that could not be helped. He realized, already, that his chances were hopeless. Yet he had shown a wonderfully generous spirit in winning for her the money that would send her straight to Steve's arms.

Her thoughts turned to her father and sister living in the uninspiring apartment in Brooklyn. There was a wave of pity for them, because they lived life without a thrill. Poor things, they seemed happy and content on so little. Mary, herself, had never actually seen that part of the family; only her mother had understood and loved her deeply. To the others she had never been mysterious and peculiar; as alien as a young pea fowl in the brook of a clucking hen.

But when she was married to Steve—when she had settled down—she meant to see more of them, she would do generous things for them. Even now, she had some money in excess of her Cuba trip, and next evening she went to Brooklyn and put two hundred dollars in her sister's hand. They were glad to get the money—it meant family refurbishment—but no one thought to inquire where Mary got it. But she was too engrossed herself in the miracle of giving to mind their lack of curiosity; how could a girl, with a wonderful lover like Steve, pin her mind down to any absorbing interest in the small details of her indifferent relatives? All that had been tender and sacred had been concentrated in the love between Mary and her mother. The others were just relation, nothing more...

How Will Chancellor Hitler Use Vast Dictatorial Power?

With Influence Greater Than That of Mussolini, Stalin or Kemal Pasha, Nazi Chieftain Wields Tremendous Force for Good—or Evil.

What will Dictator Adolf Hitler do with the mighty power conferred upon him by the German Reichstag? That is the question which is worrying Europe today. In the age of dictators, Chancellor Hitler stands out as the one wielding the greatest power over the fate of his country. Although Premier Benito Mussolini is recognized as the virtual ruler of Italy, he has his Grand Council, which has a say, even if a small one, in framing his policies. Soviet Russia, over which Josef Stalin does his dictating, has an executive council of people's commissars, by which Stalin's dictates must be approved before they become law; and Kemal Pasha, though no one dare dispute his rule in Turkey, has a submissive parliament, which, although something in the nature of window-dressing, might, if it so desired, make trouble for the dictator. But Chancellor Hitler enjoys virtually unlimited power. With the Cabinet he controls, he may make laws without the approval of the Reich or popular referendum; he may make treaties with foreign powers without endorsement by the Reichstag, and among other liberties he may take with the constitution is that of decreasing the budget and borrowing money without any parliamentary approval. In his foreign policies, too, there is none to say "you can't do so-and-so," a fact which is disturbing a war-weary Europe which is not unmindful of avowals Hitler has made regarding the Versailles Treaty and the Polish Corridor. However, Dictator Hitler's statements since assuming his new power have proved reassuring. In brief, all he wants, he says, is a square deal for Germany, peace and goodwill. The next four years will tell whether or not he is sincere.

Care and Forethought Will

Keep Busy Hands Beautiful

No matter how much housework we may have to do, there is no excuse for roughened, ugly red hands. It is all a matter of care, since many of the most beautiful, pleasant hands I have seen belong to women who do a great deal of their own housework.

Questioning always leads to the fact that these women have worked out schemes and devices that protect their hands, no matter how utilitarian the task that these hands may be performing. I am not talking here of lotions and creams for the hands. That is not my province. I am merely concerned with protective measures. For instance, are you well stocked with really good, well-fitting rubber gloves? If you are, then it is almost certain that your hands do not show evidence of housework. Wear these gloves for all work that usually leaves your hands grimy, such as polishing silver or any other metal, or for the jobs that usually leave your hands water-soaked. The gloves must be of good quality and fit perfectly, well over the wrist.

Use Gloves When Possible

Then for the other household tasks that do not require the hands in water, there are soft, washable lambskin gloves. These come in various sizes and are treated with lanolin, so that the hands may enjoy a beauty treatment while performing important household duties. Women wear these gloves when dusting, gardening and using the vacuum. If you do not wish to buy these gloves, then see to it that you save old slipper doekies or chamois gloves for the same purpose. Whatever you do, keep your hands gloved as much as possible.

There are some tasks that the hands must tackle ungloved. And so, every time you finish a task that leaves the hands wet, dry them well. If there are vegetable stains, a cut lemon quickly applied will remove them.

Kitchen Beauty Cabinet

In many households, a few things have to be washed out every day. In that case, you will find that a small hand vacuum washer will do this task perfectly and keep your hands out of water, with a consequent saving of your hands and the things washed.

A hand dishwasher will be found to be a splendid investment, if you want to keep your hands soft and white. Rinse the things with a spray attached to the sink faucet. Or failing any device, wash the dishes in warm soapsuds, made from good, pure soap, stack in a dish drainer and rinse with the aforesaid rubber spray attached to the faucet.

Keep your hand lotions and creams in your kitchen beauty cabinet, something that every kitchen should contain. A small medicine cabinet is good for this purpose. Have it if possible near the sink, so that you can get in your hand repair work at once. A stack of paper towels near the sink is a great convenience. It is sanitary and most certainly does cut down on the household laundry bill.

A Going Concern

TOLEDO, O., March 29.—Testifying in a hearing on the petition of 8,000 workers for back wages, Linwood A. Miller, receiver for the Willys-Overland company, said an audit showed the company on Feb. 15 to be a going concern with a net value of $27,621,115. Federal Judge George P. Hahn continued the hearing indefinitely.

PLYMOUTH, Mass.—The 11-room home here of Mrs. Charlotte E. Sumner is perfectly round. Chimney and fireplaces are in the center of the dwelling with staircases and closets built around them, causing every room to have an arc for one side. The inside walls are straight. A barn in the rear is square.

Names you should know

You like to know names that everybody knows—name of the man who tied lightning to a kite; name of the man who watched a tea-kettle and went out and made an engine. Just knowing such names gives you pleasure.

Yet there are names that thousands of people know that can give you much more pleasure in a much more personal way. Names that stand for the best things to eat, to wear, to sleep on. Names, that if connected with the salad dressing, hat, fountain pen you select—or any other desirable thing—mean it is most desirable. Names written large in ADVERTISEMENTS.

Advertisements tell why those are wise names for you to know. Why such names greet you in the best grocery, department and hardware stores. Why those names are in the buying vocabulary of thousands . . . are believed in by thousands . . . justify belief!

Read the advertisements. Don't ask vaguely in a store for "cold cream," "a skillet," "a vacuum cleaner." Ask for So-and-So's Cold Cream, So-and-So's Skillet, So-and-So's Vacuum Cleaner. Use the names, you have learned through advertisements, that stand for the product that means most to you and most to everybody.

COLUMBIANA

Rev. Harold Humbert, pastor of the Hiram Church of Christ and a member of the Garrettsville Rotary club, was the speaker at the meeting of the Columbiana Rotary club Monday evening at the Park hotel. Rev. Humbert, who is a candidate for the office of governor of the 21st Rotary district at the next election in April, gave an excellent address on "Project Yourself," using as the basis for his theme the personality and life of Disraeli, the famous British statesman, who, according to Mr. Humbert, had many characteristics that would have made him a good Rotarian were he living today. If one is to be great, Mr. Humbert says, one must be absorptive, distinctive, affirmative, considerate, generous and loyal. He complimented the local club on the four records it has broken during the last nine months.

He was accompanied here by Lewis Templin, president of the Garrettsville club, and was greeted by five Kent Rotarians: President William Reed, William Walls, Fred Musselman, Fred Haymaker and John Soller. R. L. Hawkins of Columbiana was a club guest.

In a unique consecration service worked out by Rev. Funk, all officers and committee chairmen pledged their best efforts in carrying Kiwanis forward in the coming year. A beautiful birthday cake, a gift of the Leetonia club, adorned the speakers' table. Music consisted of group singing, several groups of selections by the newly organized Kiwanis orchestra directed by James Martin, vocal quartets by R. J. Miller, R. A. Watkins, O. B. Moore and H. F. Gilmore, and several accordion solos by Gerald Lesh. Other guests at the meeting included Dr. Rosswork, Cort Husted, George Stauffer, Conland, Stewart Morland, Steubenville; Robert Moore, Gerald Lesh and H. F. Gilmore. Two Perish As Liner Keels Over At Her Dock In Seattle

This remarkable photograph shows the American mail liner and passenger vessel, President Madison, keeled over at her dock in Seattle. Five men were trapped in her hold as she tipped over. Two of them died. The vessel was being overhauled when water poured through the side where workmen had removed plates, causing the unusual accident.

THE DAY IN SPORTS

IT'S "PLAY BALL" SOON

BEAUTIFUL, hot, summer days when millions of the nation's sports-loving fans, depression notwithstanding, assemble in bleachers and stadiums as spectators at baseball games, are just around the well-known corner.

March, with its mild winds and snow on its way out, replaced by April and the opening of major league baseball seasons. The bills drop, and the opening title at Cleveland on April 19.

And your dry cleaner comes around and see you about the 12th of the month to clean that suit of yours for Easter.

Salem managers begin to look up went preparatory to the organization of teams for the start of the football season. Summer resorts open for reopening; golfers look toward every morning as they rise, stretch and yawn and think of the terms of sand bunkers, birdies and par.

THEN THERE'S that picture of a summer afternoon spent sitting in the sun, coat off, your eyes hypnotized by the movements of a green background, the diverting bursts of speed and the arcs made by the white, streaking ball as it periodic trips from the end of a batsman's bluegown into the blue sky, where it hangs for a moment and then descends lazily into the back paw of a fielder's mitt.

It's baseball season; let's all go to the ball game. Your ears will again be pricked to attention by electric cries of "Oo bum! Strike out and sit down!" "Three out!" "What are you looking for?" "Throw it, you fool!" "Bring home Pete, bring him home!" "Whassamatter? Fraid to get your pants dirty?"

Cries, the meaning of which you can't have to know to enjoy. Whiffs of red, limber frankfurters you detest any place but at a ball game, intrigue your appetite while on the diamond a running sure suddenly slides into a pack of just along the basepath, hooking an expert leg into the bag. Wipe the mustard off your fingers, reach for another peanut, then a drink of pop.

YOU WOULD have to go to a ball game—and who wants to go to a ball game?—to see anything as graceful as the delivery of Herbert Pennock or George Earnshaw. And you must go into the realm of practical miracles to find anything as thrilling as George Herman Ruth catching a fly ball on a dead run and, with a continuation of the same motion, pass a runner out at home plate. All done with such incredible accuracy that the catcher who takes up is position at the plate never comes out of his spike holes and merely to tag the homecoming runner.

Baseball has attack, defense, awe, deceit, strength and speed, excitement and thrill, triumph and happy ending, defeat and departure. It has everything you want: the line of entertainment, gives you a chance to boo and a chance to cheer. Nothing to do, no place to go, you get from baseball an unrivaled and unrehearsed drama of athletic conflict—your side the hero, the other side the villain.

If you haven't experienced all these thrills, haven't seen The Babe knock one out of the park, Pennock bluff a batter with three on, or witnessed other great performances of the diamond by lesser lights of baseball; eaten a greasy wiener with ketchup, spilled pop all over yourself rising suddenly to cheer or cheer, then, my friends, you haven't lived.

From Southern Camps

(By Associated Press)
FORT MYERS, March 29—Results obtained from a four-week spring training season this year are: Connie Mack to cut out the warm-up campaign for the Philadelphia Athletics still further in the future.

He said last night he was convinced "earnest training for three weeks will be of more benefit to the boys than dragging out the routine four or five weeks."

BEAUMONT, Tex.—Roy Parmelee, young right-handed fast ball pitcher with plenty of stuff on the arm, still is lacking that vital matter of control.

This promising New York Giants' recruit struck out five men in six innings of yesterday's exhibition game against Detroit but walked four, hit two batters, loosed a wild pitch and was socked for even hits and seven runs.

YANKEES, BOSTON SHOW POWER IN SPRING BATTLES

American League has Big Edge Over National; Cleveland Strong

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK, March 29—Led by the New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox, the American league has increased its advantage over the National in the annual spring competition in the "Grapefruit league."

Yankees Win 8, Lose 4
Of the 37 inter-league games so far played, the Junior circuit has captured 21, the Yankees and Red Sox accounting for 12 of them. The world champions have won eight and lost four while the Red Sox' record shows four victories and two defeats.

Only the New York Giants, with two victories and one defeat, have been able to get better than an even break against American league opposition although the Brooklyn Dodgers, St. Louis Cardinals and Chicago Cubs each boasts a 500 average. The Boston Braves and Philadelphia Athletics have been the principal losers, with six defeats each.

A tabulation of all intra-Major league games, regardless of whether or not they involved teams from rival leagues, shows the Cleveland Indians and Detroit Tigers, both undefeated, Cleveland has beaten Washington twice in its two Major league starts while Detroit's only game against a major team resulted in a Tiger victory over the Giants. The real leaders, however, are the Yankees and Giants, each of which have won eight games out of twelve.

Braves Lose Nine
The Braves, usually the most consistent winners in the spring training exhibition series, have dropped nine decisions to Major league teams while Pittsburgh's highly-touted Pirates and the Athletics have lost six apiece.

In games of all descriptions, whether or not against major, minor or semi-pro opposition, the Detroit Tigers lead the parade. Bucky Harris' crew has won six successive games and is the only undefeated team in the list of 16 Major league outfits. Cleveland has won eight and lost two and the Phillies have captured nine out of twelve.

The tribe plays at home on 12 Saturdays, 13 Sundays, July 4 and on Labor day, giving Salem's random plenty of chances to see the team in action on weekends and holidays.

ASTORIA, Ore.—A British gun unfired for a century, will be a welcome to the historic U. S. frigate Constitution when she sails into the Columbia river en route to Portland May 5. The cannon, stamped with a British crown and the number 6 was used at the Hudson's Bay company post here in earlier days. It was acquired by Moses Rogers, who came here early in the 18th century, and now is owned and cared for by Rogers' grandson, E. M. Cherry.

JIM BOTTOMLEY, HAFEE WILL AID CINCINNATI CLUB

Reds, Under Donie Bush, To Make Mighty Effort To Leave Cellar

This is 15th of a series analyzing major league baseball prospects.

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

The Cincinnati Reds should have a kindred feeling for their fellow club in or outside of baseball. The club changed ownership in that fateful October of 1929 and has been struggling ever since to keep from sliding right out of the National league.

Bush Replaces Howley
Simultaneous with the National "new deal", the Reds have changed leaders, substituting Donie Bush for Dan Howley.

The consequence is that with Bush's injection of a fiery new team spirit, the acquisition of the veteran Jim Bottomley to handle first base and the return of the slugging Chick Hafee to sound health, Cincinnati promises a mighty attempt to climb out of the cellar this season.

To get anywhere the Reds need another good starting pitcher to assist Red Lucas and Si Johnson.

If President Sidney Weil and Manager Bush do not succeed in landing another seasoned pitcher, they will have to rely again on getting results from Bennie Frey, Ray Kolp, Larry Benton, John Ogden, Eppa Rixey and Bob Smith. In addition to the two grade-A twirlers—Lucas, who pitched more complete games than any other in the league last year, and Johnson, No promising new-comers have developed.

Selects Infield
If we don't get the table for the other fellows and if we can keep what runs we make, the Reds are going to be tough to beat," says Bush.

Grantham at second, Bottomley on first, Durocher at short and Joe Morrissey at third, will round out a good infield. Harry Rice or Wally Roettger will give us a punch in right field.

Hafee of course, is a fixture in left and Johnny Moore's fine hitting may give him the call over Taylor Douthett in center. We don't need to worry about our catching with big Ernie Lombardi, Clyde Marion and Rolly Hemsley on the job.

"If we can get some pitching along with a few breaks, the Reds will no longer be regarded as push-overs."

SPORT FACTS

You May Not Know

TRIFLES may be tragedies in sport. Petty happenings no one may foresee can, and often do, turn an apparent winner into a loser.

Snapper Garrison, one of the greatest finishers the race track ever knew, once lost a race his mount seemed to have won when Snapper's whip slipped from his hand coming down the stretch.

Two easy grounders that looked like sure outs turned into hits in a single game and cost the Giants a world series. In the ninth inning the ball hit a pebble and bounced over Freddy Lindstrom's head, letting the Senators tie the score when they should have ended right there. In the twelfth inning the ball did the same trick to the same man and the Senators won.

And only a few weeks ago, New York university appeared headed for the team title of the I. C.-4A track meet when the mile relay, Western Pennsylvania Basketball Tournament to be staged in the Monongahela High school gym April 8.

Fifty prizes are to be awarded in junior and senior class competitions. This tourney will get under way Saturday morning and continue until winners are declared in each class.

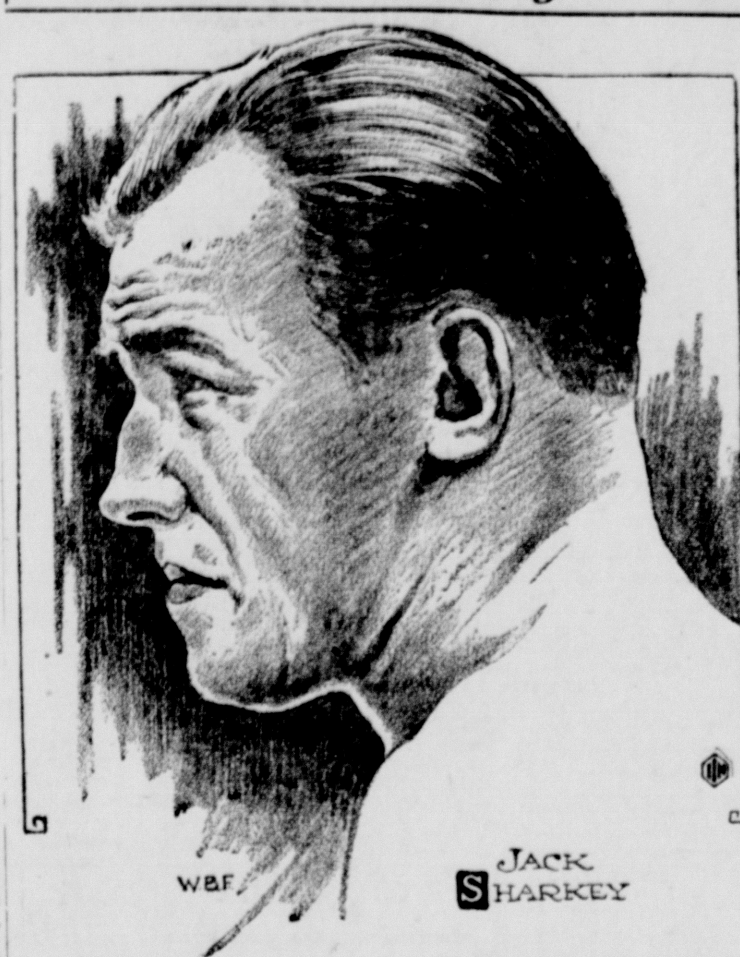

Entry blanks can be obtained by writing L. C. Healey, Box 775, Monongahela, Pa.

As the Babe Signed Them Papers

Here, you fans, is photographic evidence that the one and only Babe Ruth has been duly signed for the 1933 season. The Bambino, none too pleased with his cut from $75,000 to $52,000, is shown putting his "John Hancock" to his new contract while Col. Jacob Ruppert (left), owner of the Yankees, and Joe McCarthy, manager of the team, witness the historic event at St. Petersburg, Fla.

Sharkey Says He's Ready to Battle Carnera "Any Time"

(By International News Service)

BOSTON.—Whether it be in May, July or September Jack Sharkey will be fit and ready to defend his heavyweight championship of the world against Primo Carnera, the "Ambulatory Alp."

While Carnera is in Italy recovering from injuries sustained when his automobile was wrecked, Sharkey was starting to get gradually in condition for his coming title scrap.

Not knowing just when the New York Madison Square Garden will name the date, Sharkey wants to be ready at a moment's notice. He has begun sparring with heavyweights in a local gymnasium, and already believes his wind is O. K. It always has been Sharkey's practice to do a few "turns" each week around the reservoir near his home in Chestnut Hill.

Sharkey today is only a few pounds over the weight he carried the night he won the title from Max Schmeling, of Germany.

The controversy in New York over the Schmeling-Max Baer and the Sharkey-Carnera fight dates draws no comment from "Squire" Jack.

"I would rather not have anything to say about what's going on in New York," he said. "When the fight is put on, I will be ready."

counting, stopped his fall with his gloved hand. His left leg swung in the air and his right ankle buckled under the weight.

Ankle Injured
When Johnny arose at the count of nine, the ankle was gone for the night. Limping, his face twisted from the pain, he tried to avoid Daniels' damaging right but for the most part vainly. His efforts to bore in to the attack were retarded too much to be consistently effective.

In the third, Risko sent a left to the stomach that floored Daniels, who was saved by the bell.

In the fourth, fifth, sixth, ninth and tenth, especially, Daniels sent one rocking right after another after Risko's limping frame.

Daniels three years ago defeated Risko on a foul in a fight at Boston in which he floored the baker boy four times.

Pennzips, Community Merchants to Play In Prelim Games

An all-star aggregation of Alliance basketballers will battle the championship Sanders Orphans in the main contest of a three-game basketball program at the Memorial build gymnasium tonight.

Ex-High Stars On Squad
Included in the visitors' lineup will be Larry Russell, Lehnis, the Hurford brothers, Darrell and Donald Quick and other former Alliance High stars.

John Sanders, manager of the Orphans, will place a strong lineup on the court to oppose the invaders. The main clash will get under way about 8:45.

Two interesting preliminaries between four fast stepping girls' teams are booked.

Pennzips Face Falls
The Pennzips Merchants, winners of the girls' league title here last season, will battle the East Rubber team of Cuyahoga Falls at 8 while the Community Merchants oppose New Castle Yellow Jackets at 7:30.

Still more basketball will be the attraction at the high school gymnasium Saturday night when New Castle, Pa., and Alliance, rivals for the Penn-Ohio German league championship, tangle here.

The two teams are now tied for the league crown and have agreed to meet on the neutral Salem court to battle it out for the championship.

Salem Sachsen girls meet Youngstown Sachsen in the prelim at 7.

A Warrior Comes Home

The flag-draped casket containing the remains of Major General William M. Johnston, war-time commander of the 91st Division in the A. E. F., is shown as it was placed on a gun caisson on arrival at Jersey City from Europe. The remains of the General, who died in Paris, were laid to rest at Arlington National Cemetery, where many of his former comrades are sleeping their last sleep.
